BACK TO BASICS

WOUND CARE WORKSHOP

presented by Dr Michelle Gibb

Focusing on the basics of wound care we will be discussing treatment options for different types of common wounds, how to best address challenges in wound care, and working through ten case studies. The workshop also includes a 90-minute practical session.

The Back to Basics Wound Care workshop will offer healthcare professionals an in-person opportunity to refresh their skills and knowledge in the basics of wound care. Guests will be able to use the time spent in the workshop towards their Continuing Professional Development (CPD) requirements that aim to maintain, improve, and broaden their professional knowledge.

JOBST® soSoft

8-15mmHg Compression sock

Essity is excited to announce a new range of Ready-to-Wear compression socks.

JOBST® soSoft compression socks provide graduated compression to help support circulation and are an integral part of a skin tear protocol, helping with prevention and treatment. Compression therapy should be considered if the wound is on the lower leg. Before applying compression, a full leg assessment should be carried out.

With gentle compression of 8-15mmHg, JOBST® soSoft compression socks can help tired and achy legs, are suitable for longer periods of sitting and standing and provide relief from minor oedema.

JOBST soSoft compression socks are available in a stylish ribbed pattern, in Black and Sand colours

BED BATHING AND SKIN HYGIENE

Maintaining personal hygiene is an essential component of care provision and directly impacts on skin health and a person's comfort and wellbeing. Personal hygiene includes care of the skin, hair, nails, mouth, eyes, ears and nose, perineal region, and facial shaving.

Many factors can have a negative impact on skin health including (Coyer et al., 2011; Konya et al., 2021; Lawton & Shepherd, 2019):

- Excessive washing and the use of harsh cleansing products
- Lack of hygiene resulting in a build-up of potential pathogens and increasing the risk of infection
- Poor nutrition and hydration
- Older age
- Urinary and/or faecal incontinence
- Chronic health conditions
- Poor skin integrity or wounds
- Poor mobility
- Dependence on others for assistance with activities of daily living

The opportunity to assist with personal hygiene is the ideal time to identify factors impacting on skin health and to implement timely strategies to reduce the risk of avoidable complications.

When correctly performed, bed bathing supports skin integrity (Groven et al., 2017), skin hygiene (Groven et al., 2017), and the overall health and well-being of the person (Konya et al., 2021). It is important to offer the person having the bed bath with the opportunity to participate in their care to maintain their independence, self-esteem, and dignity (Veje et al., 2019).

Plastic bowls, soap and water, and reusable washcloths should be avoided in favour of pre-packaged products for bed bathing (also referred to as bag baths) (Groven et al., 2017; Lawton & Shepherd, 2019). These do not require water, are pH neutral, include emollients and some even include barrier preparations to protect the skin from moisture-associated skin damage. They are designed for single-use only and reduce the risk of infection.

Despite bed bathing being a common practice, there is a paucity of research supporting its practice (Barakat-Johnson et al., 2020; Groven et al., 2017; Konya et al., 2021). However, there is widespread agreement in the literature that bed bathing is safe and effective (Groven et al., 2017; Konya et al., 2021), improves skin cleanliness, and enhances patient comfort (Barakat-Johnson et al., 2020). Furthermore, bed bathing may be a more efficient and cost-effective alternative when compared to traditional soap and water (Schoonhoven et al., 2015).

PHASING OUT SINGLE-USE PLASTICS

The Australian Government estimates about 130,000 tonnes of plastic waste makes its way into the marine environment each year[1].

Some researchers estimate there is 30 times as much plastic at the bottom of the ocean as there is floating on the surface[2].

In 2021 Australian Environment Ministers and the Australian Packaging Covenant Organisation agreed to phase out single-use plastics by 2025[3].

The ban targets 'problematic and unnecessary' plastic waste which includes plastic plates, bowls, cutlery, and straws.

In 2021 the Queensland government banned businesses from supplying single-use plastics to customers[4].

Some businesses are exempt from the ban when dealing directly with those who have a disability or healthcare needs[5]. These exempt businesses are expected to find suitable alternatives where possible.

As a result of the bans, many suppliers are no longer manufacturing single-use plastic items as demand has dropped significantly. In 2024 all of SSS Australia's suppliers of single-use plastic products have ceased production of these items and stocks are nearly depleted. There are great alternatives to single-use plastic utensils.

Wooden utensils advantages over plastic:

- Reduce the amount of plastic in the environment and break down better in landfill
- Handles the heat better, and does not become too hot in heated food
- Wood has antibacterial properties that help trap and eliminate germs and bacteria
- No sharp edges and therefore safer in delicate mouths and hands
- Wood is more rigid than plastic and does not bend

Steel utensils advantages over plastic:

- Easy and quick to clean
- Steel lasts for a very long time
- Able to handle hot foods
- Does not react to food, especially food that is highly acidic
- Can be made from recycled materials
- Surface does not hold any germs or bacteria

Please speak to your SSS Australia Personal Account Manager about the best alternative for you and your patients or residents.
